

The Edmond Sun

Wednesday

November 25, 2015

NOTABLE

SOMEONE TO KNOW

Greg Metcalfe knew he wanted to be a lawyer but was unsure what field of specialty he would pursue as a career. An experience with litigation proved to be the spark he was looking for. "I wasn't sure of the direction I wanted to take beyond graduation, but I immediately got into some litigation opportunities upon graduation, and it was an excellent fit for me," Metcalfe said. "I enjoy the work and the rest is history."

Metcalfe is now a shareholder with the GableGotwals law firm in downtown Oklahoma City.

He has been litigating in state and federal courts, at both the trial and appellate levels for more than a decade.

He has handled civil lawsuits and appeals involving issues including Internet and technology disputes, contract disputes, construction disputes, civil rights defense and tort claims.

"I enjoy the problem-solving nature of it (litigation)," he said. "Every day is uniquely challenging. Every case presents that issue that needs a solution."

Prior to working at GableGotwals, Metcalfe spent eight years serving as an assistant attorney general for Oklahoma.

Metcalfe is married to his wife Amy and they attend Victory Church in Edmond. He has two stepchildren, Ashton Poarch and Keegan Poarch.