Tulsa attorney named to national arbitration panel

The American Arbitration Association named Chris S. Thrutchley, a shareholder with the law firm of GableGotwals, as Oklahoma's AAA employment arbitrator.

A nonprofit organization, AAA provides alternative dispute resolution services to parties, including individuals and organizations, who wish to resolve legal conflicts outside of the courtroom. AAA serves in an administrative role, moving cases through the process in a fair and impartial manner.

As a member of AAA's national panel of employment law arbitrators, Thrutchley arbitrates and mediates employment disputes around the country. Arbitrators are chosen for their expertise, integrity and judgment.

Thrutchley, a graduate of the University of Tulsa College of Law and Graceland University, is the only Oklahoma attorney serving on the panel.
